QUINTA MAZATLAN

The urban sanctuary works to enrich people's lives by sharing knowledge about birds, plants and environmental stewardship in South Texas.

Summer Camp Programs

You're invited to sponsor a summer camp program for children offering science-based exploration in their local environment.

THE GOAL

The project engages elementary, middle and high school students in a science-based program to explore and learn about their local environment. The Rio Grande Valley is an ecologically important region, but children today know more about the "virtual world" than the "natural world".

THE AUDIENCE

The environmental science camps help kids and teens develop character, learn valuable skills, make new friends and discover the natural world! The camps promote responsible stewardship starting at a young age.
